

University of Cambridge - Faculty of Economics

Applications are invited for Teaching Fellowships to provide teaching for undergraduates in the Faculty of Economics for one year beginning in October 2018. These are not full-time positions and candidates should normally be registered graduate students within the University of Cambridge.

STATA Classes - Separate Classes for Part I, Part 2A, Part 2B, Diploma, MPhil

11 hours of lectures (with repeat sessions, making a total of 33 hours) in Michaelmas and Lent Term to be taught in the University's Computer Rooms.

The fee for these classes is £82.00* per hour Repeat sessions will be paid at a rate of £54.00*

*this is the current rate, but likely to increase slightly for 2018-19

Part 2B Papers

The Faculty wishes to appoint Teaching Fellows for all papers in Part IIB. A Teaching Fellow would be required to give supervisions in groups of six and mark all assignments for each supervision. He or she would be paid by colleges in the normal way (current rate is £43.68 per hour for groups of 6). The Faculty would, in addition, pay a retainer of £3000 for a Teaching Fellow with a standard teaching load of 50-60 hours (but proportional for less or more than 60 hours.) There may also be duties related to teaching support, as directed by the paper co-ordinator. The teaching requirement for a paper would be four topics, two in Michaelmas and two in Lent. A Teaching Fellow might teach on more than one paper, or share the load for a paper with another Teaching Fellow. The expected number of contact hours for a Teaching Fellow would be between fifty and sixty, and the papers concerned are the following:

Paper 1 Microeconomic Principles and Problems
Paper 2 Macroeconomics Principles and Problems
Paper 4 Economic Theory
Paper 6 Banking and Finance
Paper 7 Public Economics
Paper 8 The Economics of Developing Countries
Paper 9 Industry
Paper 10 Theory and Practice of Econometrics II
Paper 14 World Depression in the Interwar Years

Facilities for Teaching Fellows include free printing of supervision material, and Prizes of £500. The criteria for the award of the prizes would be an overall satisfaction of 4, and no marginal cases will be considered. The number of respondents for the surveys would also be taken into consideration.

For further information please contact the Director of Teaching, Dr Pontus Rendahl, rpk22@cam.ac.uk

Those newly appointed will be required to attend a training session on small-group teaching just prior to the beginning of the Michaelmas Term, 10.00 till 1.00 on Tuesday 2 October 2018.

Any graduate student applying for one of these Fellowships should first discuss their intention with their supervisor, and provide a statement to the effect that their supervisor is supportive of them taking a Teaching Fellow position, and attach it with their application.

Applications by letter and curriculum vitae, giving relevant experience should be submitted electronically to Silvana Dean, Teaching Administrative Officer, Faculty of Economics Thursday 19 April 2018. E-mail: sd207@cam.ac.uk
